

Veterinarians put the
'NV'

in

TNVR

5 REASONS VETERINARIANS ARE IMPORTANT TO TRAP-NEUTER-VACCINATE-RETURN (TNVR)

1. Spay & Neuter

Spaying and neutering is what TNVR is all about! Veterinarians who perform these surgeries stop the breeding cycle and improve the lives of community cats. Read more at alleycat.org/SpayNeuter.

2. Vaccinations

Giving rabies and FVRCP vaccinations as part of TNVR helps keep community cats, and the public, healthy. Get more details about cats and public health at alleycat.org/Rabies.

3. Microchips

Microchips can help community cats return to their outdoor homes. When veterinarians microchip community cats during TNVR, and scan those who come to their clinics, they keep colonies together. Learn more at alleycat.org/PlanToScan.

4. Educating

The public looks to veterinarians for animal expertise. Help us spread the word about TNVR, community cats, neonatal kitten care, and more. Get resources to share with clients at alleycat.org/Shop.

5. Volunteering

Make a difference by providing your services at free or low-cost spay and neuter events, events, which take place in communities across the country and around the world! Find local groups to volunteer with at alleycat.org/FeralFriendsNetwork.

TNVR wouldn't be possible without veterinarians like you!
